

MONTREAL JOB AND TRAINING FAIR

New perspectives are everywhere

The Montreal Job and Training Fair a social and economic force

Montreal, February 21, 2006: In exactly one month, the 26th Montreal Job and Training Fair – the largest event of its kind in Quebec – gets underway at the Palais des congrès de Montréal. On Tuesday, March 21 and Wednesday, March 22, 2006, some 130 business representatives will come together with the common goal of meeting you – in person.

The Montreal Job and Training Fair has been bringing together key players in the business world for more than 12 years. To this day, the event has stayed true to its original mandate: the promotion of trade employment opportunities in the greater Montreal region and in surrounding areas, of training opportunities related to market needs, and of job search tools with new technology, Internet and employment assistance specialists. Recently, this mandate was expanded to include the promotion of entrepreneurship.

WHO IS THE MONTREAL JOB AND TRAINING FAIR INTENDED FOR?

For everyone! For the job seeker or the person looking for a career change; for those who are still weighing their career options; for those who are searching for a training course that offers good future prospects or a course geared toward personal development; or for entrepreneurs – in spirit or in practice.

The Montreal Job and Training Fair is free.

WELCOMING THE WORKERS OF THE FUTURE

Students and graduates are welcome! In dealing with an extensive network of companies, we see that there is a growing need for replacement workers, who are generating more interest than ever among our recruiters. Meet your future employers now – they'll tell you where your career opportunities are, and why not... they'll even offer you a job on the spot!

Representatives of sector committees in the metallurgy and food service industries will be at the Fair to provide information on career prospects and opportunities in their respective areas.

The Montreal Job and Training Fair reflects the realities of the job market, today and tomorrow.

JOB & TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES, CONFERENCES

The event's Web site features information on jobs, training opportunities and conferences at the Fair. A final update will be posted on the site one week prior to the event – so stay tuned and take the opportunity to find out more.
